CITY INTELLIGENCE.

[For Additional City Intelligence see Third Page.]

THE FRUIT SEASON.—During the spring months and the earlier part of summer, the markets are generally more or less heated with tropical fruits. The banana and the pineapple alike tempt the eye and the palate with their luscious richness. Vessels bring large cargoes of these fruits, from the West Indies, principally. Oranges and lemons and coconuts are also generally very plenty in these months, and form the source of a very profitable trade for our coasting vessels, which take down our staples, and bring back the tropical fruits in return. But rich as are these fruits, they are immediately followed by others, which, when the season commences here, and our own fruits ripen and are brought into market.

With all due respect for the sunny South and the torrid regions, the fruits of our more temperate region compare very favorably with them in numbers and quality. Even now, as the season is just opening, the markets are enriched with the most delicious peaches and apples, and the melon are fast coming to perfection, and the most dali and unappreciative palate is easily tempted by the piles of luscious fruit. Peaches, apricots, cherries, etc., are peculiarly blessed in their vegetable products, in spring and earlier summer, we have our strawberries, those prunes of berries, the whortle berries, and a number of others that just die out in time for the earlier fruits, the cherries, etc., which, in their turn, give place to the more solid and substantial fruits, the peach, apple, plum, apricot, etc.

The peaches this year do not appear to be as plenty, or of as good quality as they have usually been in past seasons. There is a general complaint of their scarcity in the States of Maryland, Delaware, and New Jersey, which goes to show that there is a great demand for them. The market is still strong, and the prices of the day, including the celebrated Clothing House of Charles Stokes &amp; Co., located under the Continental.

MUSHROOM FREDERIC.—Of the swarm of inferior specimens got up to compete with the "Night-Blooming Cereus," scarcely even the memory remains. They are literally forgotten, while the sales of that peperomia of all fragrance constantly increase.—W. H. Stoddard.

LIVERPOOL CAMPO TROPO.—Known to be a reliable and popular article for Chancery, Drapery, Bazaar, etc., for sale by Dr. D. J. Mardon, and the maker, C. H. Needles, Fifth and Race streets. Every one should keep them at hand.
